

Dedicated Servers

Where your web serving requirements demand more than just shared hosting, our range of dedicated servers are the perfect solution. Whether you are operating a busy website, bandwidth intensive Internet application, or just want to host multiple sites from a single location, we have a range of enterprise grade equipment ready to meet any requirement. Our servers are popular in many other applications, including streaming audio and video, gaming services and the next generation of new-media innovations.

We select hardware from a number of industry leading manufacturers to ensure the highest levels of performance and reliability. This coupled with our 10 gigabit enabled carrier grade network gives levels of availability to exceed even the highest customer expectations. Utilising dedicated servers for your service roll-out enables a high level of flexibility and scalability without the necessity to operate an in-house hardware engineering team, or having to allocate budget to expensive equipment purchases. Dedicated servers are also excellent for security as each server is devoted to an individual client or application, this minimises the risk of intrusion and prevents other third party tasks from compromising system stability.

When ordering a dedicated server from us you can choose for it to be located in a number of geographically diverse sites each with their own redundant connectivity and power. Our data centre sites all exhibit high levels of physical security, and have technical staff available 24 hours a day to resolve any problems that may arise. In addition, our bespoke 'Portal' website facilitates secure, quick and easy access to common maintenance tasks and diagnostic data from anywhere in the World. We keep a full stock of spare parts for every server configuration that we sell to ensure we can meet our guaranteed service levels in the event of equipment failure.

To find out more about our range of dedicated servers please call or email team of specialist advisers who will be happy to discuss your requirements in more detail.
